Irma Enjoys Sports Day

A large and happy crowd turned out to the sports held under auspices of the Irma branch, B.E.S.L., here on Wednesday. The day was featured by baseball, softball, children's races and other events that kept everybody interested until the picture show in the evening that was followed by a big dance in Kiefer's hall. A horseshoe pitching tournament was held during the afternoon.

The results of the baseball games were as follows: Irma Intermediates 15, Wainwright 0. Irma Juniors 2, Hardisty Juniors 5. Red Stars 2, Coal Springs 0. Red Stars 10, Rockyford 4. Girls' softball—Irma 9, Wainwright 5. Coultman's orchestra furnished music for the big crowd that attended the dance.

The refreshment booths and concessions were well patronized and to say the least the day was a big success.

Edmonton Exhibition Bigger and Better

This year's Exhibition to be one of the finest in the history of Northern Alberta's Big Fair. It is expected that all roads will lead to the Edmonton Exhibition the week of July 16 to 21, as unusual interest is evinced in the many new features which the Exhibition management have arranged for this year's show.

Farm Tractor Races
Many refuse to believe that farm tractors can be run safely at around 50 miles per hour, but seeing is believing, and this may be seen at the combined Edmonton Exhibition. The Exhibition management have been advised, Lou Meyer, famous speed ace, has been engaged to drive one of the tractors which will be run on Tuesday, and Saturday, July 17-19 and 21.

Television
Another unique feature will be the giant Television Show. This was one of the most talked of attractions at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto the past winter. Prominent citizens of Edmonton, and local artists will speak or sing or play in a studio on the Exhibition grounds, and in a separate theatre patrons will see and hear them.

"Alpha" the Robot is another novel attraction that everyone will want to see. Seven hundred pound mechanical man that talks, smokes, fires a gun and performs many unbelievable feats.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police will present a musical ride on three evenings of the Fair—Al Capone's armoured limousine will be on display in the Royal American Shows, the new Midway for the 1934 Exhibition. "Tarzan" will be a visitor at the Big Fair and every kiddie will want to see him.

"The Show of the Century," which is to be a special production in front of the grandstand is an outstanding presentation. There will be Running Horse Races every afternoon during the six days of the Fair and the grand parade of prize winning livestock in front of the Grandstand.

Reduced Railway Rates
In addition to the usual reduced rates good for the week of the Edmonton Exhibition, of fare-and-a-quarter for the round trip, the C.N. and C.P. Railways have signified their intention to put on two three-day excursions at a-cent-and-a-half a mile. See your local ticket agent for dates.

Advance Sale of Admission Tickets
The Exhibition management have decided to repeat the advance sale of tickets at reduced rates, for the 55th Annual Exhibition. These will be on sale throughout Northern Alberta to the end of the week before the Exhibition opens. A novel contest has been arranged for boys selling these tickets. Free trips to the Edmonton Exhibition, all expenses paid, will be awarded to the twenty boys in Northern Alberta selling the largest number of advance tickets, and local citizens in every town will be boosting their home town boy for one of these coveted free trips to the Big Fair. UNITED CHURCH NOTES

The services next Sunday will be at Albert, Alma Mater and town at the usual hours. The sermon topic will be "The Inescapable Christ."

There are shut doors which keep Christ out, and there are other doors that cannot keep Him out. We are familiar with Holman Hunt's picture of Christ standing at a door knocking, listening for a welcome from within. Are we as familiar with fact that there are doors which may be closed, but which cannot keep Christ out? There is also the fact that Christ is inescapable. We invite everyone to church next Sunday.

The resignation was handed in by Premier Brownlee almost immediately after the caucus had been called to order by Gordon Forster, U.F.A., Hand Hills, chairman of the caucus.

The resignation has not yet been accepted by the members, but is under discussion.

Fast Time Made From Chinook, Montana to Irma

Mrs. M. McLeod was very pleasantly surprised on receiving a wire last Wednesday that her daughter was making them a visit after an absence of 15 years. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harris and children, Mildred, Hazel and Norman, motored in their new V8 from Chinook, Montana, covering the distance in about 16 hours actual travelling time. They spent a pleasant week end visiting at the homes of mother and sisters, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Frickleton and Mrs. Art Blakey, starting the return trip home early Monday morning, July 2.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

A very successful affair materialized when the local W.C.T.U. held a special meeting last Wednesday evening.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of prizes (six in number) to the winners in the recent essay and poster contest. The prize essays were read by the successful competitors—that of Gladys Geeson (grade VII) giving her arrangement of budget for a salary of $780 and stating why she did not include alcohol or tobacco among the items; Olive Larson (grade IX) and A. Knudson (grade X) had exceedingly well prepared essays, both giving sensible, practical, scientific and, in several instances, quite original reasons why they considered "cigarette smoking a useless, wasteful and dangerous habit for youth to indulge in."

The poster prizes were won by Melvin Pederson (grade VIII), Lynx school, and Fern Shippey, of Kinross, (grade X) being also carried to Kinross by Nerm Shippey.

The prizes consisted of a double set of the "Danny" series of books by Nellie McClung and one copy of Christine Tinsling's "Sidelights from Shakespeare."

Extracts from the Dominion Tobacco Act were read by Mrs. Osterhout, giving penalties liable to be inflicted on smokers under 16 years of age, and stating penalties ranging from $25 to $100 for either selling or giving cigarettes to a person under that age.

Mrs. Locke sang, rendering very beautifully and sympathetically a solo, "Somebody Voted to Ruin My Boy."

Opportune remarks were made during the program by the chairman relative to the harmful effects of smoking both physical and mental.

The serving of a dainty lunch, silver collection, and a social period closed the meeting.

Youth Defeats Malcolm Campbell In Home-Made Car

A youngster in what was virtually a home-made car had the thrill of beating Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world's fastest land speed record. It happened at Brooklands in the fourth race.

He was W. E. Harker and he proudly called his car a Harker Special. It was driven by two small M.G. engines coupled up with great skill by this young engineer. Campbell's car was the giant Sunbeam, of 3,976 c.c. The Harker Special was only 1,492 c.c.

Campbell started scratch. Mr. Harker in his home-made car had a start of 31 seconds. Campbell drove with all his accustomed skill. He overhauled the whole field, but found his master in Mr. Harker and his Harker car.

Little Helps For This Week

"Blessed be the Lord who daily loadeth us with benefits." Psalm 48:19.

Source of life's refreshing springs.
Whose presence in my heart sustains me.
Thy love ordains me pleasant things.
Thy mercy orders all that pains me.
—A. L. Waring.

When I survey the occurrences of my life, and call to account the finger of God, I can perceive nothing but an abyss and mass of mercies, even in general to mankind or in particular to myself. Those things which others term crosses, afflictions, judgments, or misfortunes, to me who inquire further into them than their visible effects they both appear and have ever proved the secret and dissembled favours of His affection.—Sir T. Browne.

Administering The Law

In Central Park, New York, on a forbidden stretch of turf green in the May morning, some children were playing. Suddenly the law swooped down on them, hawk-like; two cops in a police car, big with duty, turned their car off the driveway swiftly so that it up onto the lawn and right across it to where the children stood. "Get off the grass!" The children ran. The cops backed their car around and scuttled away. Peace settled down again the little prostrate blades of grass struggled slowly back to their feet.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Toretta", "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla, Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive club, when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Camilla urges Peter to accept some of her earnings to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. After Camilla has gone to the studio, Avis Werth calls and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1,000. Peter finishes his exhibit and asks Avis and Camilla for suggestions as to a name for it. Camilla suggests "Eager Youth," and Avis "Inspiration." Peter adopts the latter. Avis and Camilla, heartbreak goes to Peter's studio for quiet and to think. Peter and Avis follow later, and as the lights are turned on, see the statue has been shattered to pieces. Avis accuses Camilla of doing this, and Camilla, stunned by the disaster, and hurt and horrified by the accusation, faints.

At Camilla's suggestion, Peter enters as his exhibit a statue he had sculptured especially for her as a wedding gift. They named it "Land of Hope".

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XLIX.

Peter refused to comply with Camilla's plans that he should come to her apartment for a week of rest, and to get away from his work.

"What's the big idea of that?" he wanted to know. "Nothing for me to do there, and you are away all day."

"But it's a pleasant place to rest and I thought it would be a good change for you."

"Say, I'm no invalid. I have to be busy—doing something. You don't suppose I'm going to wait around for that exhibit prize, expecting to win, do you?" He laughed ironically. "From now on, I am going to accomplish something worthwhile. I already have a standing order from Avis, and I'm going to get to work on it."

At every mention of Avis' name Camilla experienced a shock of pain and remembrance and hate. There could be but one explanation of her ready accusation of Camilla after the tragedy. She was trying desperately to separate her from Peter's love. Camilla held fast to the belief that she never could do that, however. Peter was changed, but not because his love for her had changed. It was his work and anxiety and then the final crushing disappointment, that had made him seem distant and gloomy. She only pitied him and yearned to do something for him which would restore him to the normal happy Peter of the springtime of their love.

His remark about starting work on some sculpture for Avis brought to her mind reluctant visions of their hours of consultation and planning together. Avis would make the most of that opportunity, which was undoubtedly her reason for having Peter do the work. Of course, she was glad for Peter to have a good client like Avis, just now when he needed definite encouragement, she tried to assure herself. But there was no denying the significance of the situation. She tried to appear interested, as she would have been in any other such prospect.

"What kind of things are you doing for her?" she inquired casually. "I don't know. Some studio stuff for her, and garden things for her mother. That is what I've got to get busy and find out. It means that I'll have to go to the Werth's for tea and inspect their gardens with an alert eye to what is lacking in my line, suggest and plan with them. It's a good start, anyway."

He agreed, however, that Camilla's plan for an afternoon and a picnic supper in the woods on Saturday was a jolly idea, and Camilla hoped prayerfully for a glorious autumn day for their first opportunity of the kind in a long time. Providence was kind and provided a perfect atmosphere.

It was the kind of autumn day that had inspired poets to sing of golden sunshine, flaming foliage, nodding gentians—the grand finale of nature's triumphant symphony of the harvest, of another season's work nobly and abundantly completed. It was a day which gave to the soul content, the mind peace and the heart a glowing gratitude for the mere privilege of life. The very air breathed indolently of relaxation after work accomplished, of imminent promise of reward—the very antithesis of the hope and ambition of the springtime.

Peter and Camilla paused in their struggle of doubts and fears and ambitions, and left that world of strife behind them when they boarded a bus for a wooded park ravine outside the city, equipped with only a small compact hamper into which Camilla's skill had stowed all the requirements for a broiled steak dinner.

A considerable walk from the highway tired them just enough to promote that delicious sense of lazy relaxation when they had reached the selected spot and dropped down in a bushy clearing beside a rushing brook. Its busy, gleeful song as the water tumbled over rock barriers and retarding obstacles, undaunted, resolute, toward its destination, seemed to mock their vain and futile questionings of destiny; to chide their restless impatience and petty black-erings. It challenged them to meet life as it followed its course, determined, but merrily, with a song.

Peter stretched his long body on the grass and rested his head in Camilla's lap, while she twined her fingers in the golden waves of his hair and stroked his cheek lovingly.

Dry, colorful leaves rustled in the trees above them or scurried with the wind down the course of the brooks' streambed. At intervals, leaves dropped softly and gracefully from branches overhead, fluttering in lazy spiral curves to join their gleeful companions that danced and rustled on the ground. Birds called cheerful greetings through the foliage, chirped contentedly together; far sounds echoed clearly in the bright, metallic air that was a flood of golden sunlight.

Avis and the perplexing difficulties of life seemed very far away. Even the recent tragedy which had cast so dark a shadow upon their happiness, seemed more remote and inconsequential. Strange that man, heir and lord of so much grandeur and peace that nature provides, should struggle so desperately to add to that heritage the less lovely, grosser possessions of his discontented imagination. But someone started it, so all posterity had it follow; and in the march of centuries, the pace has grown so rapidly that many have forgotten even the object toward which they are pressing on, on.

In that hour of complete surrender to the elemental forces about them, these two minute atoms in the mighty mass of mankind seemed to recapture some of the hope and confidence with which they had begun their life together, a few months earlier. Confidence in each other and in themselves, courage to press on, ultimate promise, beckoned them with new gladness.

"It won't be long now," Peter told her gently, "until I can take care of my girl right. We'll forget all about Pats and perhaps, some day... But that isn't now. I'm going to work like a slave—not on a chance, but with the kind of solid objective that all work should have, and as soon as I have paid my debts and get something ahead we are going to take a house somewhere, in the country or on the lake, where I can work and you can do nothing but plan for us and inspire me. That shouldn't be so very far away, lovable."

"I hope it isn't," Camilla agreed. "By that time, I shall have proved to myself either that I can or can't be a success in my own work, and then I'll be ready to resign and just be Peter Anson's wife."

"And will that be a big enough ambition for you?" he asked anxiously.

"That is my greatest ambition, and it isn't such an idle one as you may think," she laughed.

"My precious!" The declaration reminded her of those early days of their marriage. It didn't seem possible that so many unpleasant and tragic things had happened since then. He continued, quietly, "I guess you're right. It takes a woman with brains and some cleverness to keep a man in line, in step and inspired with the cause; to march forward, show courage, keep faith and win out. But I picked a woman who can do it if anyone can."

"Dear Peter," Camilla laughed fondly, "you could do all that alone, without me; but with love, the adventure will be so much more worth the effort."

"Don't I know it? That is all that makes it mean anything." They never referred again to the catastrophe of the broken figure, never ventured to guess who might have been responsible. It was so futile, anyway; the thing was done.

an irreparable loss. And each of them was reluctant to enter into that hideous void of doubt and accusation and wonder where they had faced each other once for just a few horrible moments. They evaded that experience with dread.

This delightful solitude of shared understanding and faith was so much more in keeping with the beauty of their love, that they kept within its boundaries even as one who drives along a smooth highway without venturing into uncertain by-roads and dangerous places.

Together, they collected dry wood for a crackling, sizzling fire, watched the gray smoke curl upward and the red coals emerge which drew them near the glowing warmth with the early retreat of the sun and the hushed approach of twilight.

Peter broiled the two club steaks on a diminutive grill over the fire, their succulent flavor mingled with the aroma of bubbling coffee, pungent smoke and sharp tang of autumn air. They dined leisurely in the firelight, and turned again reluctantly toward the strife of toil and heartache, building fortunes and dodging traffic that is known as civilization. (To Be Continued)

Inventor Consents To Suppression Of Death Ray Machine

An outstanding invention of the century, a death ray machine, will not be exhibited at the National Inventors Congress at Omaha, Nebraska, President A. G. Burns, Oakland, Cal., told delegates.

The invention has been suppressed by the United States government, with the consent of the inventor, Burns said. He said the machine, capable of killing birds in flight two blocks away, was perfected by Dr. Antonio Longoria, a Cleveland, Ohio, physician and electrical engineer.

"I witnessed a demonstration of the machine, by invitation in Cleveland last October," Burns said. "It resembles a motion-picture projection machine in appearance. Several government scientists were there. Dr. Longoria turned the ray on rabbits, dogs and cats. They fell over, instantly killed, their blood turned to water. The same thing happened to pigeons, unloosed and allowed to fly quite a distance. They fluttered to the ground and were dead when picked up."

Because of its terrible death-dealing possibilities, Dr. Longoria, according to Burns, readily agreed with government representatives that the machine be suppressed.

LOVES CROWN

Nothing of this did you speak, O, my love,
When you came my way:
Only your voice was the voice of a dove
And your words were gay.
Laughter was light upon your lips,
And the east
Showed the sky all blue;
Garlands you wove me for life's
Waiting future—
When I went with you!

Nothing of this, O, my love, did you
And I tremble now;
Strangely the winds to a tempest
swell
And the creaking bough
Splinters and falls in the gusts of life
That are swooping down:
Yet, how is it your garlands frail
Have become a crown?

A New-Found Continent

Discovered On Pacific Floor By Echoes From Depth Finder

Mountains higher than Mount Everest, huge plateaus twice the width of America and great depths that drop more than six miles downwards—these are characteristics of a new-found "continent." This hitherto unknown territory stretches beneath the surface of the North Pacific. It was discovered by echoes from the depth finder in the U.S.S. Ramapo. The Ramapo has been on a survey of the Pacific ocean bottom. It found that the submerged territory is not marked by steep depths in its separation from North America. In fact, appears to be a raised eastern shoulder of the submerged continent, but the west coast of Asia shows a series of tremendous depths. From north to south in the west portion of the "continent" is a mammoth mountain range with towering peaks which are known to Pacific mariners as islands, banks and reefs.

Deer Causes Grief

Jumps Over Railway Gas Car And Injures Two Men

The antics of a frightened deer sent two men to hospital at Sioux Outlook, Ont. The deer jumped over a speeding gas car on the Canadian National Railways and swept Pete Pohoric and Steve Illichuk off the platform.

The men were found in a dazed condition near the tracks, Illichuk with a broken leg and Pohoric badly shaken up.

Mass Suggestion

Australian School Children Ate Candy And Thought They Were Poisoned

Fifteen Newcastle school children, declaring themselves poisoned by candy, were rushed, writhing in agony, to a hospital in ambulances, says a despatch from Sydney, Australia.

Physicians examined the candies and pronounced them perfectly harmless. "An amazing example of mass suggestion," said a physician.

A farmer from the 10th century would have had no great difficulty in familiarizing himself with the tools and implements in farm use 100 years ago, so little progress had been made in farm equipment in 900 years.

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN—When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass here, tells the story. An Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly as you swallow it. And this is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN's quick relief, be sure the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

WHY ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop an Aspirin Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom it has started to disintegrate.

What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

Where does your merchant keep PERISHABLE Food?

YOU'RE probably a bit "fussy" in your home about the foods you serve, careful to guard them from disease-bearing Bacteria by correct refrigeration below 50 degrees from the moment they enter your home, because you know that unless perishable foods are protected from the heated atmosphere they quickly lose their freshness and may endanger health.

DOES your merchant safeguard the foods which you purchase by using Electric Refrigeration, or IS YOUR FOOD IN DANGER before it even reaches your home?

NEXT time you go shopping for food why not look around the store and see if you are getting this definite assurance of freshness. YOU'RE ENTITLED TO IT.

EUROPEAN WHEAT SITUATION
(Total Annual Average Production 1,440 million bushels)

FOR each of the past two years the importing countries of Europe have enjoyed unusually high wheat yields per acre, due to very favorable climatic conditions. This year, it is estimated, they will have but a normal yield per acre, hence their combined production is expected to be about 250 million bushels, less than last year. This situation should result in substantially increased shipments of wheat to Europe from exporting countries for the 1934-1935 season.

The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER

By ALFRED BIGGS

Nobody loves an egotist.
Wisdom is better than wealth.
Waste no tears over yesterday.

It is often harder to live than to die.
We are all slaves to habit and custom.
Ignore misfortune and it will ignore you.

A mind perennially young is a fountain of youth.
Aged war-masters demand young victims.
